Dear list members: The beta-version of the Indiana University Egyptian Sculpture Digitization Project is now online:

<http://www.digitalsculpture.org/egypt/main/main_collection>

It is a sub-project of the Digital Sculpture Project, a project of the Virtual World Heritage Laboratory at Indiana University's School of Informatics, Computing and Engineering:

<http://www.digitalsculpture.org/>

Our current core collection of Egyptian objects is from the Brooklyn Museum of Art, but we will be expanding shortly to include models of objects in our own Indiana University Eskenazi Museum of Art. We are highly interested in recruiting other museum partners. If you have models already produced, we can host them on our site (you can also maintain your own Sketchfab site); we can offer advice and technical support if you would like to learn to produce high-quality models; we can also visit you with our team and create the models ourselves.
Feel free to be in touch at any time with your ideas and requests.

Steve Vinson
Professor and Chair
Department of Near Eastern Languages and Cultures Indiana University – Bloomington

vinsons@indiana.edu
812-856-6736

Postal Address:
Department of Near Eastern Languages and Cultures Hamilton Lugar Global and International Studies Building, Third Floor
355 N Jordan Ave
Bloomington, IN 47405
USA